Modulog, Inc. manufactures solid wood siding products, including cedar log siding, which looks like logs but requires 75% less wood. The company has used only the finest Western Red Cedar in North America in Longview, Washington. This naturally beautiful and tall Cedar Timber is grown in the lush forests of Western British Columbia and northern Washington and Idaho. Modulog patented solid criss-cross log ends, also known as butt and pass corners, give the authentic log look and feel to any site-built or manufactured home. Re-side any existing home into a log cabin. Modulog siding installs just like any other siding product and is a fraction of the cost of logs. Its cedar log makeover packages include every component needed for the authentic look and feel of a Log Home.
