Elder Demolition is a fully licensed and insured commercial and industrial demolition contractor based in Portland, Oregon. With certifications for hazardous waste handling and broad experience with LEED-certified green demolitions and scrap-metal recycling, the company works with general contractors and property owners to provide industrial and commercial demolition services throughout the western United States. The company experts are highly trained professionals who receive specialized training. They also have a fleet of specialized equipment designed to prepare sites for new construction or renovations. We meet with clients and inspection agencies to learn the project's goals, concerns, deadlines, start dates, and other vital information. During the assessment process, the company considers environmental concerns and plans for the demolished materials. Clients will learn about the recycling practices and green techniques available to determine if they offer the most significant benefits to the project and community. Elder Demolition also maintains a fleet of specialized equipment designed to prepare sites for new construction or renovations.
