Based in the Manhattan borough of New York City, Control Exterminating Company specializes in residential and commercial pest control services, including eliminating undesired insects and rodents. Residents of Manhattan and its' surrounding boroughs live in close quarters. The entire building could get infested if one apartment becomes infested with bed bugs or cockroaches. Landlords and supers have trusted Control Exterminating for years to provide top-notch extermination services to protect their investments and keep their tenants happy. Restaurants, cafes, supermarkets, and bakeries also need commercial pest control, as mice and rats love to frequent these facilities to look for food. This type of business needs to maintain all areas clean, but it's as essential to have pest control to follow up at least once a month. A brief history of the company, an overview of its services, and service area are presented, with specific information about roaches, bed bugs, ants, rodents, flies, water bugs, beetles, moths, silverfish, ticks, fleas, and stored product pests.
